Responsibility

I am a hardworking and reliable professional with two years of hands on experience at Furukawa Automotive Systems Lima, Inc., a leading manufacturer of automotive wiring harnesses and electrical components. During my time there, I was involved in various stages of the production process, including assembly, quality inspection, and ensuring compliance with safety and manufacturing standards. My responsibilities included assembling wiring harnesses according to precise specifications, identifying and addressing quality issues, and maintaining efficiency on the production line.

Working in a high pressure, fast paced environment taught me the importance of accuracy, teamwork, and time management. I also gained experience in using tools and equipment specific to automotive manufacturing and developed a strong understanding of process improvement and lean manufacturing principles. I take pride in being dependable, adaptable, and detail oriented, and I am now looking forward to bringing these strengths to new challenges where I can continue to grow professionally.

Beskrivelse

I completed my education in Electrical Installation and Maintenance, where I gained both theoretical knowledge and practical training in the fundamentals of electrical systems. My coursework covered key areas such as electrical wiring, circuitry, safety procedures, troubleshooting, and the proper use of tools and equipment. Through hands on activities and lab work, I developed skills in installing, maintaining, and repairing residential and commercial electrical systems in accordance with safety codes and standards.

This training not only enhanced my technical abilities but also strengthened my attention to detail, problem solving skills, and commitment to safety qualities that are essential in any technical or industrial setting.
