ID: 6665

Hello everyone! I'm Chen Juan. Currently, I'm a college student, immersing myself in the vibrant academic and social life on campus.

I have a profound passion for communication. I believe that through communication, we can break down barriers, understand different perspectives, and build meaningful relationships. In my daily life, I actively engage in various group projects and extracurricular activities. Whether it's discussing complex academic topics with classmates or planning events with club members, I always enjoy expressing my ideas and listening to others. I find that these interactions not only expand my knowledge but also enhance my interpersonal skills.

When it comes to my professional aspirations, I'm particularly interested in the hotel industry. I've gained some practical experience through part - time jobs and internships in hotels. During these experiences, I've learned how to provide excellent customer service, coordinate different tasks, and handle various situations with guests. These skills have not only deepened my understanding of the hotel business but also strengthened my determination to pursue a career in this field.

I'm an enthusiastic, proactive, and adaptable person. I'm always ready to embrace new challenges and opportunities. I look forward to making new friends and collaborating with like - minded individuals in the future. Thank you!
